1. Description of Selective Course

In addition to the required courses, a certain number of selective courses are set up in both professional courses and professional practice courses, of which a total of 6 credits should be taken in professional courses and a total of 5 credits in professional practice courses. These two main categories of courses include the following:

(1) Business Courses

These courses focus on cultivating application-oriented talents who can adapt to various business positions, and the development of business skills. They provide students with a macro-level understanding of international trade related knowledge, business strategies and concepts. Students can learn relevant business terms, basic processes and business etiquette from listening, speaking, reading and writing as well as practical operations, and actually master the accounting skills that are very much needed for business positions.

(2) Cultural Courses

These courses focus on the cultivation and experience of students' cultural literacy and aim to increase the depth of thought and improve critical thinking skills. On the one hand, it lays the foundation for further academic study, and on the other hand, the study and experience of Japanese culture contributes to the understanding of the cultural differences between China and Japan and facilitates the development of cross-cultural communication skills.

2. Explanation of the relevance of vocational qualifications and competition awards to courses.

Students who have passed the Introductory Japanese Business Bookkeeping course will be able to sit for the vocational qualification related to this subject: “Bookkeeping Competency Test Level 3”.

Students who have obtained a Certificate of Proficiency in Bookkeeping Level 3 or higher, a Certificate of Full Scripture Etiquette, and a Certificate of Intermediate Japanese Interpretation are eligible to apply for exemptions and credits for the Introduction to Japanese Business Bookkeeping, Business Etiquette and Communication, and Japanese Interpretation Practice III courses.

Students who have won a third prize or higher (including the third prize) in a Japanese speech competition at municipal level or above may apply for exemption from the Japanese Speech and Debate course and receive the corresponding credit.

X. Prerequisite for Course Study
